Sir,

The National Tribal Research Institute (NTRI), New Delhi is organizing one day National Conference on the theme ‘National Conference on Preserving Tribal Languages: Utilizing Technology to Preserve, Document and Spread Best Practices’ tentatively on 29th February 2024.

2. The "National Conference on Preserving Tribal Languages: Utilizing Technology to Preserve, Document, and Spread Best Practices" is a pivotal program with a multifaceted approach towards safeguarding the linguistic heritage of India's tribal communities. This conference will serve as a critical platform for linguists and scholars to converge, exchange, and disseminate best practices and resources for the documentation of tribal languages using technology.

3. The conference anticipates the active participation of a diverse group of individuals and organizations, including linguists, subject experts, scholars, educators, practitioners, and community leaders working on the ground to preserve tribal languages. It will also attract representatives from government agencies and educational institutions interested in promoting tribal language preservation. This diverse assembly of participants will enable the exchange of ideas, experiences, and best practices in utilizing technology for tribal language preservation. The conference is expected to serve as a national platform for dialogue and collaboration among stakeholders dedicated to preserving tribal languages.

3. The Advertisement for “Call for Papers” is enclosed herewith for your kind approval to upload on the IIPA Website for wider circulation.

Submitted for approval Pls.
